HEREDITARY THEATRICAL FAMILIES

(All rights reserved)

BY THE LATE J. M. BULLOCH

(No fresh tables have been added, but several have been amended and brought up to date. J.P.)

THESE tables, which now deal with a hundred families, are a contribution to the history of heredity on the stage, and while they are necessarily incomplete owing to the great lack of data, they cover more ground than has been attempted hitherto. They are purposely confined to members of a family who have been on the stage, or who have practised any of the other arts

Heredity and environment have a great deal to do with the choice of all the professions, but they are particularly active in acting, especially of acting in the old days of stock companies or of short runs, when the player practically spent his life in the theatre. They are still more powerful with people in the circus business, which is a primitive form of acting, for, whereas players may enter upon a theatrical career when they are grown up, equestrians, acrobats and the like, who may afterwards graduate into clowns, have, by the very necessity of the case, to begin when they are very young, and are practically cradled in the sawdust. The consequence is that circus folk not only keep to their business, but marry within it. Indeed, the circus business of the world is confined, owing to these marriages, to a small group of families of whom the Cookes, dealt with in these tables, are typical.

As I have shown, they are intermarried into a number of other famous circus families, and the tables concerning their intermarriages and the facts about these intermarriages would fill several tables. Almost the only book on these circus families is the Artisten Lexikon, by H. W. Otto, "Signor Saltarino," published in Düsseldorf in 1891. The book is not only exceedingly rare, but is out of date.

On the other hand, I have enlarged the tables which show players belonging to families who have distinguished themselves in other forms of art. Of these one of the most distinguished is the Comptons, especially through intermarriage with the Addington Symonds family, which has displayed extraordinary ability in many of the arts. Something of the same sort occurs in the case of William Terriss's family, the Lewins, who were connected with India and the Law, and India also was responsible for the Prinsep group, as descended from one of the beautiful Pattle sisters. Once they reach the stage these families seem to become further involved with the theatre, shown in the case of Mr. Anthony Prinsep's marriages and also in the case of William Terriss's children.

The business of acting is indeed so highly infectious that actors' children take to it in spite of any discouragement that may be offered; and sometimes when the parents' advice has been taken in the first generation, as in the case of Macready's son, now General Sir Nevil Macready, who is a good amateur actor, it breaks out in the next generation, as in the case of the General's daughter. As Judge Parry has reminded us, Charles Calvert "forbade" his son Louis "to think of the stage," but, of course, after a spell of the sea, the boy did so—with the result we know. "I am sorry to say," writes a veteran comedian, "all my children who grew up were on the stage; some of them still are, occasionally, when they can get anything to do."

And yet, to have been brought up in the atmosphere and environment of the stage does not necessarily imply exceptional skill or aptitude in acting although it may start a family of actors of varying degrees of merit. On the other hand, men without any theatrical strain in their families have become famous actors. Thus Sir Herbert Tree's father was a man of business, Sir George

WHO'S WHO IN THE THEATRE

Alexander's a commercial traveller, Mr. Waller's a civil engineer, Sir Charles Wyndham's an hotel keeper—and, by the way, none of these used his own patronymic on the stage. The father of Mr. Bourchier was an army officer; Mr. Arthur Collins's an architect, and many similar instances could be cited.

The oldest theatrical family still represented on the stage seems to be that of the Pitts, founded by Mrs. Ann Pitt (1720–99), dealt with here in the table of the Addison, Dibdin, and Pitt families.

The next oldest family is the Kembles, whose founder, Roger Kemble (1721–1802), produced a remarkable family, including Mrs. Siddons. The histrionic instinct must have been strengthened in them through their mother, who was an Irishwoman. Indeed, the ranks of our actors, as has frequently been pointed out, are very largely made up of people of Celtic or Jewish origin. To take a modern example, Sir Henry Irving himself, born at Keinton in Somerset, had a Cornish mother and his wife was Irish; the famous American family of Booth was Jewish; and the Comptons bear the fine Highland name of Mackenzie. The Kembles began acting probably about the year of the second Jacobite Rising and were represented on the stage till November, 1907, in the male line, by the late Mr. Henry Kemble, and in the female line by the late Mr. Frank Kemble Cooper, whose children are the youngest generation on the stage with a Kemble strain. Curiously enough, the only actor family dealt with by Sir Francis Galton, in his Hereditary Genius, was that of the Kembles: while the Germans, with all their laboriousness, have dealt with only two families, the Bassermanns and the Devrients (1932), in two books by the Berlin critic, Herr Julius Bab. The latter volume contains eleven tables of the Devrient family covering nine generations, from a Tabakhandler in Mannheim in the seventeenth century.

The tables, laboriously compiled and frequently revised, as obscure data have turned up, are indebted in some cases to other genealogists. Thus, the one dealing with the Blands (ancestors of the late Duke of Fife) and Glovers are chiefly compiled from Mr. J. F. Fuller's elaborate "Pedigree of the Family of Bland, late of Derriquin Castle, Co. Kerry" (1907). The Jay table is founded on the articles by Mr. Ralph Thomas in Notes and Queries (10th s. vi, 441, 502). I am wholly indebted to the late Mr. Walter Copeland Jerrold for the table of the Jerrols, for he had constituted himself the family historian. I am also much indebted to the late Mr. T. McDonald Rendle, whose memories of theatrical personalia during the last fifty odd years was amazingly comprehensive. The tables of American acting families are based largely on a series of articles in the Theatre, of New York. I have also to express my best thanks to Mr. John Parker, the Editor of this book, whose knowledge of players past and present is probably unique; he has supplied many details and suggested several of the tables. Mr. W. J. Lawrence, who possesses a minute knowledge of the nooks and crannies of old theatrical history has helped me generously. The veteran Dame Sarah Mair, D.B.E., has helped me with the Murray-Siddons family. I regret that such a book as the present does not readily afford facilities for citing chapter and verse for the statements in the tables.

Theatrical biography is exceedingly difficult to trace because of the players' fundamental disinclination to deal in anything so concrete as facts and dates, while birth certificates, especially in the case of older actors, are almost impossible to get. In some cases the player shows a natural dislike of any inquiry into his origins, because there are strains of illegitimacy. Let me say here, that, while I have not, in the case of living players or their descendants, indicated by the conventional dotted line these illegitimate descents, I am perfectly well aware of them. But I have given these descents because "marriage lines" have nothing whatever to do with the inheritance of ability. Besides, as players so frequently change their names, the inclusion of such people is not so misleading as in the case of the genealogies of non-theatrical families.

I may note in conclusion that players themselves have, during the years in which these tables have been published, given very little assistance or added anything to the facts stated, although additional information is, and always has been, very welcome, for it is only by continued and co-operative care that anything approaching completeness can be attained.

March, 1936

J. M. B.

Since the death of Dr. Bulloch, I have discovered that the male line of the Kemble family, which he believed to be extinct, is still represented on the stage in the person of Mr. CHARLES SIDDONS KEMBLE, and the table has been amended accordingly.

A further interesting discovery which I have made in connection with the Kembles, is that Miss PAMELA STANLEY, the actress who played Queen Victoria in "Victoria Regina," is the Great-great-great-niece of the immortal Mrs. Siddons. She is the second daughter of the late Arthur Lyulph Stanley, 5th Baron Stanley of Alderley (d. 1931), by his wife Margaret Evelyn, who was the younger daughter of Henry Evans Gordon and his wife Mary (Sartoris). Mary Sartoris was the daughter of the well-known singer and writer, ADELAIDE KEMBLE (Mrs. Sartoris, 1814-79) who was, in turn, the niece of SARAH (KEMBLE) SIDDONS (1755-1831). Miss Pamela Stanley's brother, the present Baron Stanley of Alderley, is Mrs. Siddons' Great-great-great-nephew. Roger Furse, the designer, and his sister Judith Furse, actress, children of Joan Sartoris, who married General Sir William Thomas Furse, K C B , K.C M G , D.S.O , stand in the same relationship to Mrs. Siddons.

I have greatly amplified the WEBSTER table, which now shows that this family has been continuously engaged in the amusement world, since the days of Charles II. The Irving and Drew tables have also been greatly extended, and all the other tables have been brought up to date.

WHO'S WHO IN THE THEATRE

THE ADDISON, DIBDIN, and PITT FAMILIES

This family seems distinct from that of James Pitt, baronet at Drury Lane and the "Turvedrop" of Manchester, whose daughter married Will Pigot, comedian, and became the mother of Tom Pigot, which Tom took the name of Percy Milton and helped to form the Milton Rays Company. James Pitt was the great-grandfather of James and May Agate

THE COOKES OF CIRCUS FAME (1ST TABLE). See also RIGOLD TABLE

George Belmore II married Jessie Danvers, sister of Ramsay Danvers, Actor, and of James Danvers, Actor, who was the father of Bulle Danvers, Actor. They were the children of Edwin Danvers, Actor. The children of George Belmore and Jessie Danvers, namely George Belmore III and Jessie Belmore (who was married to Louis Hector Niblett, Actor), are both on the stage. Guy Belmore, Actor, belongs to the family; his mother, Mrs. Belmore Sutton, having been a Gartin. The Cookes claim connection with the family of Coke (pronounced like Cooke), Earl of Leicester.

THE FORBES-ROBERTSONS

A long pedigree, with table, by J. M. Bu'loch, was printed in the Aberdeen University Bulletin, No. 32, 1926, showing, inter alia, that while Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson played "Macbeth," he was descended from King Duncan, whom Macbeth murdered in 1040. Fourteen of the Forbes-Robertson family, including some who are not professional players, played in the "Clan Macduff," 17 and 20 May, 1927, of "Twelfth Night," at the St. James's Theatre, in aid of the Sadler's Wells Theatre Fund.

THE LUPINO FAMILY

The early part of this table is taken from Stanley Lupino's book, From the Stocks to the Stars (1934, p. xiv), where it is stated that Georgius Lupino, the first of the Lupinos to come to this country—he was descended from the hereditary Italian family of puppet players of the name—arrived in the reign of James I. The descent from Georgius I is as follows: George William (1632-93), George Charles (b. 1662), George Charles (1693-1723), the father of George Richard Eastcourt Lupino as above. The index has 28 different Lupinos.

THE MATHEWS FAMILY

Charles Mathews, the elder, was the uncle of James Matthews Leigh (1808-69), artist and dramatist, who was the father of Henry Sambrooke Leigh (1837-83), author of Carols of Cockayne. It is stated in Who's Who (1920) that Sir Charles was "the son of William and Elizabeth West and step-son of Charles James Mathews, the comedian, whose name he assumed by deed poll." But "Barke" called him the son of Charles James Mathews and he strongly resembled the latter in features.

THE ROBERTSONS—TABLE A. (See Table B. also BRUNTON and KENDAL TABLES)

Although the usual books of reference are wrong in believing that the Robertsons are descended from James Robertson the comedian of York (1712-1798) there seems little doubt they are descended from James Shaftoe Robertson, who was a comedian in York at the same time, but who afterwards became connected with the theatres in the Lincoln circuit. An elaborate inquiry distinguishing James Robertson and James Shaftoe Robertson was contributed by J. M. Bullock to New and Old Plays (Dec. 3, 10, 17, 1932. cxxxii, 398, 418, 434). Henry Arkell seems connected with Reginald Arkell, dramatist, who married Elisabeth Evans (Address), daughter of Edwin Evans, biographer of Brahms, and sister of Edwin Evans, Musical Critic. The 1st Lord Russell's nephew, Walter Russell, R.A., is Keeper of the Royal Academy.

* Married before Succession

FROM first to last, that is, from 1735, if not 1722, to 1939, forty actresses have married peers, representing six Dukes, including a royal one, three Marquises, seventeen Earls, one Viscount and twelve Barons. Eleven of the peers did so before succession and twenty-eight after succession.

The fashion was set by the 3rd Earl of Peterborough, the famous general, Charles Mordaunt, who married as his second wife Anastasia Robinson, the singer. The exact year is doubtful, for there is no record of the ceremony. That is impossible nowadays, with keen-eyed journalists on the outlook for news, although even now such marriages are sometimes quietly contracted before they are noticed. Peterborough's marriage probably took place in 1722, but more probably in 1735—for he had long kept company with the lady. Peterborough's marriage with Anastasia formed, it may be remembered, the basis of George Meredith's sparkling novel "Lord Ormont and his Ancestress," issued in 1894.

ACTRESSES AND THE PEERAGE

The second marriage was that of Charles (Powlett), 3rd Duke of Bolton, who married at Aix in Provence in 1752, as his second wife, Lavina Fenton, who had been his mistress since 1728, bearing him three natural sons. The lady, whose birth name was Beswick—Fenton was the name of her stepfather, a coffee-house keeper at Charing Cross—created the part of Polly Peachum in "The Beggar's Opera" in 1728, and Hogarth's portrait of her as such hangs in the National Gallery. This marriage is very interesting because two Earls Poulett, representing the senior line of the Duke's family (now Paulet, Marquises of Winchester), in our own time married actresses.

Of the forty actresses married to peers, only eight have had sons who succeeded. Six had issue that did not succeed. Five had issue that may succeed. Twenty-one, or more than half, have had no issue.

Three of the peers, Lord Cowley, Lord Lyveden, and Lord Rosslyn, were at one time actors. One peer, Viscount Torrington, has twice married actresses.

In one case an actress, Olive May, whose maiden name was Meatyard, has married twice into the Peerage. She first married in 1913 Lord Victor Paget, brother of the 6th Marquis of Anglesey. Her only son (born 1914) by this marriage (dis. 1921) is in the succession. She married secondly, in 1922, the Earl of Drogheda.

In seven cases the marriage has been dissolved, five at the instance of the husband and two at the instance of the actress-wife.

In one case, not included in the forty, the son of an actress-wife has succeeded to the peerage of his grandfather Eileen Orme (Ethel Rose Kendall), cousin of Denise Orme, formerly Lady Churston, married the Hon. Maurice Hood (1881–1915), heir of the 2nd Viscount Bridport. He was killed in action, leaving a son Rowland (born 1911), who succeeded to the viscounty in 1924, and whose mother received (1925) the title and precedence of the widow of a viscount.

Several actresses have married younger sons of peers, the best known being—

		Married
Camille Clifford	.	1906	Hon. Henry Lyndhurst Bruce, heir 2nd Lord Aberdare (died 1914). No issue.
Joë Collins	.	1920	Lord Robert Innes Ker, 3rd son of 7th Duke of Roxburghe (mar. dis. 1935). No issue.
Sylvia Hawkes	.	1927	Lord Ashley, heir 9th Earl of Shaftesbury (mar. dis. 1934). No issue.
Ellis Jeffreys	.	1894	Hon. Frederick Curzon, son of the 3rd Earl Howe (mar. dis. 1903). They had a son, Chamberlain George William Penn Curzon, formerly Officer R.N., now an actor, George Curzon.
Peggy Rush	.	1913	Viscount Dunsford, heir 1st Earl Middleton (mar. dis. 1925). No issue.
Kate Walsh (died 1903)	.	1871	Earl of Euston, heir of 7th Duke of Grafton. No issue.

Another theatrical alliance, not, however, recognized by the law, was that of H.R.H. the Duke of Clarence, afterwards King William IV, with Mrs. Jordan (1762–1816). The eldest of their four sons was created Earl of Munster in 1831; his brothers and three of his five sisters were granted the title and precedence of the younger issue of a marquis, two of the other sisters had already married into the peerage. The third daughter, Elizabeth FitzClarence, married the 18th Earl of Erroll, and her great-grandson, the 21st Earl (1886–1928), wrote several plays while he was Lord Kilmarnock and in diplomacy. The late Duke of Fife was also descended from Mrs. Jordan through his Erroll mother. His Grace's daughter, Princess Arthur of Connaught, is a keen playgoer, and his nephew, Mr. Hart-Davies, was an actor before he became a publisher, and married an actress, all of which is shown in the Bland table.

It need hardly be added that the son of Nell Gwynne was created Duke of St. Albans.

The editor of the new edition of The Complete Peerage promises a list of peers who have married actresses, singers, and dancers, as an appendix in the last volume of that encyclopaedic work.

EDUCATION AND THE THEATRE

NOTHING could give a better impression of the immense departure from the "rogue and vagabond" theory of actors, than the fact that the profession to-day is being strongly recruited in this country, both men and women, from the public schools and universities. From the earliest times, of course, dramatists have been drawn from the educated classes—Shakespeare notwithstanding; but the rank and file of their interpreters, especially of the strolling variety, had little Latin and less Greek. That, however, has changed, all the more since the University of Oxford first permitted, in 1880, the creation of the O.U.D.S., while boys from public schools of many grades have, in recent times, sought the theatre as a profession, either as actor, manager, producer, designer, or dramatist.

Within the past few years the University of London has also given important recognition to the Theatre, by granting a Diploma in Dramatic Art, through the media of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, the Central School of Speech Training and Dramatic Art, and in a limited degree, the Regent Street Polytechnic.

The movement generally has been greatly helped by amateur acting associations, and by the regularizing of study through schools of acting, as against the old, somewhat empiric, if thorough-going, fashion of graduation on the stage itself from the very bottom of the ladder.

It is rather curious that the American university man appears to have been far more shy of donning sock and buskin than his British cousin, and the majority seem to have entered the ranks of authors, composers, and designers rather than those of the actor.

The following is an attempt to indicate the source of this new reservoir of ability on which the theatre draws, as revealed in the present edition of WHO'S WHO IN THE THEATRE

SHAKESPEARE AT THE OLD VIC.

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF THE Production of Shakespeare's Plays at The Old Vic.

UNDER THE MANAGEMENT OF LILIAN BAYLIS

In view of the fact that the Old Vic. was the first theatre in the world to have produced the whole of the plays contained in the First Folio, it may be of interest to note the dates on which the plays were given for the first time under Miss Baylis's management. "Pericles" is also included, though this play does not appear in the folio

WHO'S WHO IN THE THEATRE

THE MALVERN FESTIVAL

The Malvern Festival (of Drama) has been held at the Worcestershire health resort each summer since 1929. It was founded by Sir Barry Jackson and Roy Limbert; and on the former's retirement, in 1938, control was assumed by the latter, who nominated Sir Cedric Hardwicke as an associate director.

Sixty-five plays by some forty authors (embracing a period of nearly five hundred years) were enacted—by "West End" casts—at the first eleven Festivals, including six specially written by Bernard Shaw; to whom, as from 1938, the Festival was dedicated "for all time"

LONG RUNS ON THE LONDON STAGE

BY JOHN PARKER

THE long "run," by which most plays are usually remembered by playgoers and others, is of comparatively modern growth. Prior to the year 1822, no play had ever obtained a run of 100 nights (matinées only date back some sixty years), and it was not until the advent of the comic drama entitled "Tom and Jerry," founded on some sketches of London Life by Pierce Egan, that any production achieved that distinction.

Of course, the restricted field was mainly responsible for the frequent change of attraction which was necessary, and the Patent Theatres, Drury Lane and Covent Garden, mainly relied on Shakespeare and the old dramatists. Between seasons, from July to October, the Haymarket, which was then permitted to be open, would rely chiefly on similar attractions.

The first production to obtain a run of over fifty nights, was the famous comic opera, "The Beggar's Opera," written by Gay and Linley, produced at Lincoln's Inn Fields Theatre in 1728, and which was performed sixty-two times successively (except for benefit performances). This record stood for nearly a century. Then, nearly two hundred years later, the opera was revived at the Lyric, Hammersmith, and achieved the remarkable run of 1,463 performances.

As has been stated, the first play to achieve the notoriety of being performed 100 successive nights was "Tom and Jerry." The first version of this piece was produced at the Olympic Theatre, on 12th November, 1821, under the title of the original book, "Life in London," and this version held its place in the bills until 5th January of the following year. But it was the version, written by W. T. Moncrieff, produced under the book's sub-title of "Tom and Jerry," at the Adelphi on 26th November, 1821, that first secured the honour of being performed 100 times. The piece was played continuously until 30th March, 1822. It was revived on 7th October, 1822, and again ran until 4th January, 1823, when it gave place to what might be termed a sequel, entitled "Green in France; or Tom and Jerry's Tour," which remained in the programme from 6th January until 22nd March, 1823.

The Olympic version was also revived (this time under the title of "Tom and Jerry") on 28th October, 1822, and ran until 4th January following.

So successful was the piece that imitators sprang up on all sides, and versions were performed at the Royalty, Surrey, Sadler's Wells, Coburg, and Astley's Theatres. Indeed, at one period, in 1822, no fewer than ten theatres, in and around London, were playing "Tom and Jerry." In later years, it even succeeded in penetrating the precincts of Drury Lane and Covent Garden.

The next play to secure a run of 100 nights was a nautical melodrama written by W. Bayle Bernard, entitled "Casco Bay," produced at the Olympic Theatre, on 3rd Dec., 1827, which was played 140 times, but, somehow or other, never seems to have been revived. The author was then but 20 years of age.

"Black Eyed Susan," by Douglas Jerrold, was the next play to create a furore, and the original version, produced at the Surrey Theatre on 8th June, 1829, was played no fewer than 150 nights. Its success was phenomenal, so much so, that it was secured for representation at Covent Garden, and the famous T. P. Cooke was engaged to play his original part there. As a matter of record, it may be stated that here, for the first time, we had the recently revived idea of playing a drama twice nightly, for Cooke used to play William at Covent Garden to the Susan of Ellen Tree (who subsequently became Mrs. Charles Kean), and then return to the Surrey to play the lover to the Susan of Miss Scott.

"Jonathan Bradford," another famous melodrama, also produced at the Surrey, on 12th June, 1833, the work of Edward Fitzball, was performed 161 times in succession, was revived several times, and held the stage for many years.

LONG RUNS ON THE LONDON STAGE

In 1843, with the passing of the Theatres Act, new plays became more numerous, and one of the earliest to attain the coveted 100 nights was a spectacular production at Astley's Amphitheatre, entitled "The War in China," produced on 27 May, 1844, and performed 114 times. Then came a dramatised version of Charles Dickens's "Martin Chuzzlewit," by Edward Stirling, produced at the Lyceum, 8th July, 1844, and performed 105 times. Then followed "The Island of Jewels," an extravaganza, at the Lyceum (26th December, 1849), with 111 performances; "The Court Beauties," a comedy, at the same theatre (9th June, 1851), 104 times; a revival of "King Charming," extravaganza, at the same theatre, on the same date, 109 times; "Uncle Tom's Cabin," a version of the famous work of Harriet Beecher-Stowe, at the Victoria (20 Sept., 1852), 111 times; "The Chase," an equestrian drama, at Astley's (16th May, 1853), 104 times; "The Battle of Waterloo," a revival at Astley's (18 June, 1853), 110 times; and "The Camp at Chobham," a farcical play, at the Adelphi (30th June, 1853), 143 times.

The first Shakespearean play to secure a run of 100 nights was Charles Kean's production of "King Henry VIII," at the Princess's, on 16th May, 1855. Played 100 times to the end of the season, 14th September, it opened the next season on 22nd October and ran another 50 nights. This record stood for many years, although an equestrian version of "Richard III," produced at Astley's, 2 Sept., 1856, was played 110 times.

The modern "long runs" may be said to have commenced with the production of Dion Boucicault's famous drama, "The Colleen Bawn," produced at the Adelphi, on 10th September, 1860, and played for 165 successive nights. Revived on 29th Apr., 1861, it was played 66 times, again revived on 23rd Sept., 1861, it ran a further 93 times, and still again revived on 23rd June, 1862, achieved a further 90 performances. It was, in addition, played simultaneously, at many other theatres. Then came "Peep o' Day," a clever drama by the erratic Edmund Falconer, produced at the Lyceum on 9th November, 1861, with Hermann Vezin in the leading part, and which was performed 346 times in succession.

Curiously enough, two days later, "Our American Cousin," by Tom Taylor, which was to give E. A. Sothern's Dundreary, such undying fame, was produced at the Haymarket. Its first run reached only 36 performances, ending 21st Dec., 1861, but revived on 27th Jan., 1862, it ran uninterruptedly until 23rd Dec., 1862, or 314 successive performances. Since that date to 2 Sept., 1939, when theatres were closed, on the outbreak of War, nearly 1,900 productions have passed the coveted "100th performance," and the list will be found attached. It has been a laborious compilation, but it may prove of some interest as a record.

The first play to secure a run of 500 successive performances was "Our Boys," and although surpassed by the number of performances of "Charley's Aunt," the famous old comedy held the time-record of four years and three months' continuous performances, for over forty years, when this and all other records were passed by Mr. Oscar Asche's production of "Chu-Chin-Chow."

No other play, on the London Stage, comes within measurable distance of the extraordinary run of this piece, which was performed 2,238 times.

Twelve plays only have secured continuous runs of more than 1,000 performances: "Chu-Chin-Chow," 2,238 times; "Charley's Aunt," 1,466 times; "The Beggar's Opera," 1,463 times; "Our Boys," 1,362 times; "The Maid of the Mountains," 1,352 times; "The Farmer's Wife," 1,329 times; "A Little Bit of Fluff," 1,241 times; "A Chinese Honeymoon," 1,075 times; "Me and My Girl" (to 2 Sept., 1939), 1,065 times; "Romance," 1,049 times; "French Without Tears," 1,039 times; "The Wind and the Rain," 1,001 times. During the period of the Great War alone, 1914-18, no fewer than four productions were able to record more than one thousand performances.

Next in point of run comes "Dorothy," with 931 performances; followed by "Ten Minute Alibi," 878 times; "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," 867; "Rose Marie," 851; "Whiteoaks," 827; "While Parents Sleep," 826; "White Cargo," 821; "The Better 'Ole," 811; "The Arcadians," 809; "The Boy," 801.

WHO'S WHO IN THE THEATRE

Fourteen pieces only have secured a run of more than 700 performances: "George and Margaret," 799; "Anthony and Anna," 789; "The Private Secretary," 785; "The Merry Widow," 778; "San Toy," 768; "The Geisha," 760; "The Lilac Domino," 747; "Tons of Money," 737; "A Country Girl," 729; "Joy-Bells," 723; "Seven Days' Leave," 711; "Peg o' My Heart," 710; "Les Cloches de Corneville," 705; and "H.M.S. Pinafore," 700. It will be noted that eight of this number fall under the category of either comic opera or musical play, and four of them stand to the credit of the late Mr. George Edwardes, at Daly's Theatre. Farce ("Tons of Money" and "The Private Secretary"), melodrama ("Seven Days' Leave"), and comedy ("George and Margaret," "Anthony and Anna" and "Peg o' My Heart") are the remaining pieces.

Twenty-nine pieces have more than 600 performances to their credit, and forty-one have reached the 500 mark. For convenient reference, I append herewith the list of all plays which have secured a run of 500 continuous performances and upwards on the London Stage—

COMMAND PERFORMANCES

THE first private Command Performance was given at Windsor Castle by direction of the late Queen Victoria, on 28 Dec., 1848. The play on that occasion was "The Merchant of Venice," and in the cast were included Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean, Mr. and Mrs. Keeley, Mr. Henry Howe, Mr. Leigh Murray, and Mr. Alfred Wigan. Thereafter, frequent performances were given until the lamented death of the Prince Consort in Dec., 1861. Benjamin Webster, Charles Kean, and Samuel Phelps were at various times responsible for the plays produced, and occasionally the pieces presented were played by practically "star" casts, drawn from the principal London theatres. From 1861 to 1881 no "Commands" were given, but appended is a complete list of the

KING GEORGE'S PENSION FUND FOR ACTORS

KING GEORGE'S PENSION FUND FOR ACTORS AND ACTRESSES

THE Great "Gala" performance, given at His Majesty's Theatre by the theatrical profession, on 27 June, 1911, in celebration of the Coronation of His Majesty King George V, realised a net profit of £4,628. With the gracious assent of His Majesty, this sum was deposited to form the nucleus of a Pension Fund for aged Actors and Actresses.

In 1913 it was decided to give an annual performance, with an "all-star" cast, in aid of the fund, and the first performance given was at the St. James's Theatre, on 27 June, 1913, when the play performed was Dion Boucicault's old comedy, "London Assurance." The profit accruing from this performance (inclusive of donations) was £1,112 2s. 6d.

The 1914 performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre on 22 May, 1914, and the play chosen was "The Silver King," by Henry Herman and Henry Arthur Jones. The proceeds of this performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,241 16s.

The 1915 performance was likewise given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 5 July, 1915, when Shakespeare's "King Henry VIII" was revived. The profit realised (inclusive of donations) was £661 1s.

The 1916 performance was given at the London Opera House on 23 June, 1916, when J. M. Barrie's play "The Admirable Crichton" was presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) realised £1,840 19s. 2d.

The 1917 performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 14 Dec., 1917, when F. Anstey's comedy, "The Man from Blankley's," was revived. The proceeds (inclusive of donations) amounted to £422 11s. 4d.

The 1918 performance was also given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 17 Dec., 1918, when the second act of "Masks and Faces," scenes from "Macbeth," and Cecil Clay's "A Pantomime Rehearsal" were performed.

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) realised £2,032 1s. 9d. There were no performances during 1919 and 1920.

The 1921 performance was given at the Palace Theatre, on 19 Dec., 1921, and the programme on this occasion was composed of "Trilby," adapted by Paul M. Potter from George Du Maurier's book of the same name, and Sir J. M. Barrie's "Shall We Join the Ladies?" (Act I).

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,731 18s. 8d.

The next performance was given at His Majesty's Theatre, on 26th Feb., 1923, when "The Ballad Monger," "Half-an-Hour," and "Offenbach Follies," were given. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,044 7s. 7d.

The 1924 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 2nd June, 1924, when Mr. George Pleydell's drama, "The Ware Case," was revived. The profits on this occasion (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,408 9s. 2d. The 1925 performance was likewise given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 11 May, 1925, the play on this occasion being Mr. Edward Knoblock's episodic play "My Lady's Dress." The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,172 0s. 11d.

There was no performance during 1926.

The 1927 performance was given at Drury Lane Theatre, on 23rd May, 1927, and on this occasion Mr. E. Temple Thurston's romantic play, "The Wandering Jew," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,780 13s. 8d. Viscount Rothermere also sent a donation of £5,000.

The 1928 performance was given at the Palace Theatre, on 14 May, 1928, when Orczy-Barstow's romantic play, "The Scarlet Pimpernel," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,077 2s. 4d., and Viscount Rothermere sent a further donation of £5,000 to Miss Julia Neilson and Mr. Fred Terry for the benefit of the Fund.

There was no performance in 1929, owing to the King's illness, but in July, Viscount Rothermere gave to the Fund, as a thank-offering for His Majesty's recovery, the sum of £10,000.

The 1930 performance was given at the Haymarket Theatre, on 19 May, 1930, when "Hamlet" was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,502 6s. 8d.

There was no performance in 1931.

The 1932 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 8 Nov., 1932, when "Sapper's" play, "Bull-Dog Drummond," was revived. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,555 19s. 4d.

The 1933 performance was given at Drury Lane Theatre, on 11 Dec., 1933, when "Green Room Plays" were presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,106 19s. 1d.

The 1934 performance was given at the Adelphi Theatre, on 17 Dec., 1934, when Sir Seymour Hicks's and Cecil Raleigh's sporting drama, "The Winning Post" (a revised version of "Sporting Life") was presented. The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £1,996 19s. 4d.

There was no performance in 1935, owing to the death of H.R.H. the Princess Victoria. The performance had been arranged, but had to be cancelled.

There was no performance in 1936, owing to the Royal mourning for King George V.

The 1937 performance was given at the Winter Garden Theatre, on 16 Dec., 1937, when "From Queen Elizabeth to Elizabeth the Queen," an entertainment devised by Sir Seymour Hicks and Edward Knoblock and a miscellaneous programme were given. The profits of the performance, including the sums received in respect of the postponed matinée in 1935, amounted to £3,603 12s. 11d.

There was no performance in 1938, but a performance was given at the Coliseum, 27 Mar., 1939, when a revised version of Louis N. Parker's historical drama, "Drake," was performed, together with a miscellaneous programme.

The profits of the performance (inclusive of donations) amounted to £2,398 5s. 11d.

The President of the Fund is The Right Hon. the Earl of Cromer, P.C., G.C.B., G.C.I.E., G.C.V.O. The Trustees are The Right Hon. the Earl of Cromer, Sir Cedric Hardwicke and Mr. F. J. Nettlefold.

The Hon. Secretary is Mr. Stanley J. Passmore, 8 Bolton Street, Piccadilly, W.1; the Hon. Treasurer Mr. R. H. Shipley, Broadmead House, Panton Street, Haymarket, S.W.1; the Hon. Solicitors Messrs. J. D. Langton & Passmore, 8 Bolton Street, Piccadilly, W.1.; the Hon. Auditors, Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co.

During 1938 there were 17 annuitants (7 ladies and 10 gentlemen) each of whom received a pension of £150. The administrative expenses are practically nil, having averaged considerably less than £10 per annum.

PRESS OPINIONS

A Selection from many excellent Press Opinions of previous issues—

THE TIMES says—

In "Who's Who in the Theatre" Mr. John Parker is carrying out the good work which David Erskine Baker began with his "Companion to the Playhouse" in 1764. Mr. Parker gives the more important facts in regard to several hundred players, dramatists, critics, Continental as well as English and American.

THE DAILY TELEGRAPH says—

The value of "Who's Who in the Theatre" to all interested in stage work of any description increases with every fresh edition. Mr. John Parker's compilation, in short, is no longer a luxury, it has become a positive necessity. The new edition bears ample testimony to his untiring industry. Taken altogether it would be difficult to exaggerate the value of the volume. To all interested in the theatre, and particularly to those whose business is concerned with theatrical events, past and present, the volume is simply invaluable. What it has cost Mr. John Parker, the compiler, in patience, industry, and research none but he knows, the result is a work in regard to which the use of the word "monumental" can hardly be considered exaggerated. It is not alone the extent of ground which it covers that calls for commendation. Even more praiseworthy are the care and unremitting attention displayed in the pursuit of accuracy. To assert that it is without spot or blemish would be tantamount to declaring that Mr. Parker is more than human. But in a long experience of the theatrical "Who's Who" I have never discovered a mistake in any of the references. The book has long been known as the most useful work of its kind, and altogether invaluable as a comprehensive storehouse of facts relating to the theatre. This volume stands absolutely alone in its genre for the scope, the interest, and the accuracy of its varied information; there is no other work of reference dealing with matters of the theatre that even attempts to cover the same ground. The whole volume is a masterpiece of painstaking and enlightened research, an encyclopaedia of stage lore that is indispensable to everybody in the theatre.

THE DAILY MAIL says—

That remarkable compilation "Who's Who in the Theatre" has just been republished in a new edition. An invaluable work of reference. Contains not only condensed biographies of well-known actors, managers, critics, composers, and dramatists, but also an obituary which contains the names of nearly all the leading actors of the past.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is not only a most complete biographical record of the stage, but is also a wonderful store of facts of incalculable value to every one interested in theatres and in those who write for them, act in them, and manage them.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is undoubtedly the best and most useful directory of the stage ever compiled.

THE DAILY EXPRESS says—

..... one that every student of the stage will require on his bookshelves.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" fully deserves the praise bestowed on it.

Mr. John Parker, the editor, has brought this indispensable volume down to date. The biographies are remarkably full and complete, and the appendices are a mine of information.

THE DAILY HERALD says—

Mr. John Parker's monumental work, the very fountain-head of knowledge, contains a wealth of information as fascinating as it is valuable.

THE DAILY SKETCH says—

Of all reference books none has quite such friendly intimacy embedded so firmly in massed facts as "Who's Who in the Theatre."

To theatrical folk it is quite indispensable. In addition to the thousands of biographies, it contains more details about the theatre generally than any book that has ever been issued.

THE NEWS CHRONICLE says—

Thanks to Mr. John Parker's indefatigable labours and excellent judgment, this indispensable record of the life of the contemporary stage has now developed into a work of reference that in itself helps to give a dignity to its subject. The book is a mine of information, and in its new and enlarged edition is indispensable to those interested in the stage.

THE EVENING NEWS says—

Mr. John Parker's amazing volume, "Who's Who in the Theatre," contains everything anybody could want to know about the stage and stage folk. For those who have business in this country or America the book is invaluable.

THE EVENING STANDARD says—

Mr. John Parker has just published a new edition of his invaluable theatrical guide, "Who's Who in the Theatre." It is quite the Bradshaw of the stage, and should be on every playgoer's shelf.

Though his previous editions of "Who's Who in the Theatre" were as remarkable for extent as for accuracy, Mr. John Parker has not been content to rest on his laurels. He has not only brought his swarms of facts up to date, but the volume contains much more than personal particulars. Such information as is given about West End theatres and plays must be a great source of comfort to even the most infallible memories.

It is even more valuable than its predecessors. The mass of information it contains is well arranged and marvellously accurate. The research this must have entailed is obvious, and one looks in vain for inaccuracies.

. . . I shall give no statistics about this book; I shall content myself by saying that it is one of the most fascinating ever published; that it is most artistically and acceptably produced, and that my only regret is that its immense bulk prevents me from carrying it about with me everywhere I go

THE STAR says—

A volume which has well been called the Bradshaw of the Stage. It is a mine of information about the stage and its personalities. It is a monument of facts, skilfully collated, and an indispensable handbook for all who are interested in the theatre.

There is probably no more remarkable reference book in existence, a new edition of which has just appeared. It is remarkable not only for its completeness as a guide to stage-land—where it is known as "the Actor's Bible"—but because it is practically the work of one man, Mr. John Parker. I know of no more fascinating book of reference than this.

THE OBSERVER says—

This attractive volume has made its appearance with all the signs of robust success. The biographical portion of the work has been extended, and in every way the publication is both interesting and useful.

The book has all the qualities necessary for a work of this character; it is wonderfully up to date, accurate, full, and clearly arranged. Every one of any importance in the theatre, on either side of the curtain, is included in the biographies; the foreign drama is not neglected, the tables of genealogy, compiled by that master of the science, Mr. J. M. Bulloch, are full of interest. Mr. Parker has done his work of editing the volume with immense care and skill. There is no book like this one, and it is indispensable to those whose work brings them to the theatre in one way or another.

It is an important record of the British Theatre, which makes fascinating reading.

Nobody has ever impugned the accuracy of this fascinating work.

THE PEOPLE says—

The volume has grown with the passage of years, and has now attained to quite bulky proportions. It is, indeed, a work of much knowledge and labour, and could not be in safer hands than Mr Parker's. Such a work has entailed vast research and endless patience, but the result adequately repays all the labour expended upon it. No student of the drama can afford to be without it. Not only is it a biographical dictionary of all the more notable personages connected with the stage, it contains many other features incidental thereto. It is, indeed, an invaluable work for all whose business or pleasure takes them into the dramatic world.

SUNDAY DISPATCH says—

The best British textbook on any branch of the entertainment world has just been reissued after being brought up to date. I refer to John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre," a piece of compilation amazing in its scope and accuracy. Parker's work has the accuracy and restraint of the encyclopaedia.

THE SUNDAY TIMES says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" makes a welcome reappearance. As in the past issues, the work is a mine of information in regard to the contemporary stage. It is a formidable "compilation of theatrical biographies." It includes particulars of the lives not only of prominent folk on the contemporary stage, but references to managers, dramatists, and others whose work has been of value to the dramatic world of to-day. Mr. John Parker staggers one with his industry. His accuracy and care are comparable to those of a chartered accountant. In vain does the present reviewer search for any word to do justice to the 2000 crowded pages of the present volume.

Mr. Parker may be said to have heaped his own Pelion upon his own Ossa. As a compilation the book is a monument of thoroughness. In so far as we have been able to check the information given here the book is a monument of accuracy as well as industry.

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is really a marvellous book.

THE UNIVERSE says—

There is no need to recommend "Who's Who in the Theatre." One might as well recommend time-tables to travellers.

John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" is quite the most authoritative and comprehensive book on its subject obtainable anywhere. A remarkably detailed book of reference which is invaluable to those who are associated with the theatre, a mine of necessary information.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS says—

. an excellent book of reference. In olden days The Era, the well-known stage weekly, was called "The Actor's Bible." I wonder what the Profession will invent to immortalize Pitman's publication of Mr. John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre"? It is an admirable book, one of those I love to take off my shelves and to flit through with butterfly-wings. It tells tales of achievement; it recalls the tides of many careers; it saves from oblivion a multitude who in their day adorned the boards and have since, in well-earned rest, planted the cabbage of contentment.

It is a book that no one who loves the theatre can afford to be without, and its packed and accurate information is worth its weight in gold.

JOHN O' LONDON'S WEEKLY says—

All those connected with the stage or who are in any way interested in it cannot fail to find this remarkable book an unfailing source of pleasure.

PUNCH says—

Lovers of the drama will rejoice to hear that a new edition of Mr John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" has been published by Sir Isaac Pitman & Sons . . . An indispensable work of reference, just short of two thousand pages, packed with information, biographical, historical and genealogical.

NEW STATESMAN AND NATION says—

To all who are actively interested in the stage, "Who's Who in the Theatre" has long been an indispensable work of reference. The playgoer will find the book packed with informative and interesting reading, and they who turn to its pages for some special reference or merely open the book at random, will find they are reading on

THE SKETCH says—

All who are interested in things dramatic, whether as members of "the profession" themselves, or as playgoers, critics, business people, or what-not, will give a hearty welcome to the new and enlarged edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre," compiled and edited by Mr. John Parker. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is a thoroughly well arranged work of reference, and one which will be generally welcomed in its new edition. It contains a mine of information on matters theatrical. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is, in fact, a volume which contains information on practically every point in connection with the stage; and the Theatrical Calendar, which is one of its features, is a fascinating study.

RADIO TIMES says—

You may expect to find a tidal wave of new and accurate information about broadcasters of stage fame sweeping through these pages in the next few weeks. We have just received the eighth edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre," the most invaluable book of reference for hasty fact-hunters like us. Ever since we began writing these paragraphs we have leant largely on it for our information

SUNDAY PICTORIAL says—

A new edition of John Parker's invaluable "Who's Who in the Theatre" has just made its appearance. This has now become one of the classic books of reference—it is the Whitaker, the Wisden, the Debrett of the playhouse. And talking of Debrett, one of the most interesting new features gives a complete list of actresses who have married peers

THE STAGE says—

If there is a more enthusiastic chronicler of the personnel of the stage than John Parker, one would be interested to know his name. The author of "Who's Who in the Theatre" has need to be an enthusiast, for with each new edition the work increases in extent and complexity. These 3,000 odd biographies are, indeed, models of accurate detail, skilfully and clearly condensed. They are almost as interesting to the casual reader as they are invaluable to the practical man of the theatre

THEATRE WORLD says—

A volume which is always assured of a warm welcome from anyone interested in the history and development of the English theatre is "Who's Who in the Theatre," compiled and edited by the indefatigable John Parker . . . The new edition, just published, is a more amazing and comprehensive affair than ever. The book has developed until it has become the most reliable and complete compilation of facts and statistics relating to the theatre.

THEATRE MANAGERS'

ASSOCIATION JOURNAL says—

A new edition has just appeared of this indispensable reference book. Mr John Parker, the Editor, has done his work of compilation in a most efficient manner. . . . Mr. Parker's monumental work should be in the possession of everybody connected with or interested in the stage.

THE CINEMA says—

Of a book that calls itself "Who's Who in the Theatre," one cannot reasonably ask more than it should tell one all about who is who in the theatre.

But when one finds that, in addition to doing this, in the most comprehensive and satisfying manner, it also tells one all about half of the "who's" in the films; gives a list of all of note that has ever happened in the theatre in all the months of the year; reproduces in full the playbills of the London theatres for the past three years, lets one know who is who among the critics; gives the genealogical trees of many famous acting families, tells one about notable productions; important revivals, longest runs, command performances, and uncovers about 20 or 30 other mines of information—when one finds all this additional and unexpected information, one's entertainment is increased, one's interest is stimulated, and the work is converted from a useful reference book into a fascinating compendium

THE JEWISH CHRONICLE says—

Once again under the indefatigable hand of Mr John Parker, the great theatre reference book makes its welcome appearance and appears in a new edition. In format and appearance it resembles closely the edition of 1933. But once again the ingenious Mr Parker has bethought himself of new and interesting features, while one is really amazed, having regard to the innate difficulties of compiling data concerning the most scattered of professions and the most temperamental of artists, at the completeness of Mr Parker's magnum opus, the up-to-dateness, its general accuracy, and its systematic arrangement. Of course, for all who are in any way connected with the theatre, this book is quite definitely indispensable.

THE BIRMINGHAM GAZETTE AND EXPRESS says—

This comprehensive volume is a veritable encyclopaedia of the stage. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is a book no one interested in the stage can afford to do without. An enormous amount of work must have been involved in its publication. As a work of reference in its own field this book has no peer. It is indispensable for all who are professionally connected with the stage, and full of human interest for those who are not.

THE BIRMINGHAM MAIL says—

No one who has anything to do with the stage can afford to be without "Who's Who in the Theatre," the indispensable handbook compiled by the loving industry of Mr. John Parker. For it is a storehouse of information, which cannot be found elsewhere

THE BIRMINGHAM POST says—

..... this admirable volume. We congratulate Mr. Parker warmly on the production of a book of reference which should have—and will have—a long and prosperous run. There is very little of interest which has escaped Mr. Parker. The volume is most interesting for casual reading by lovers of the theatre, and as a book of reference it is indispensable.

But outside the "Who's Who," the three thousand theatrical biographies, is what may be called the "What's What," the several interesting features which must have taken a vast amount of trouble to compile, the records of long runs, the genealogical tables, the digest of playbills . . . the general obituary of distinguished people of the theatre, and so on. I have derived consolation and entertainment from a leisurely and systematic perusal of "Who's Who in the Theatre." A book of reference which is a model of its kind in accuracy, conciseness and comprehensiveness.

THE LIVERPOOL POST says—

Of the 3,000 biographies, 500 appear for the first time, and all the biographies are marked by a completeness that makes them invaluable for reference purposes.

THE MANCHESTER CITY NEWS says—

A nice fat volume, attractively bound in royal blue with gold lettering and containing over 2,000 pages. It is in fact no less than another edition of "Who's Who in the Theatre" Unanimously it is acknowledged to be the most comprehensive work on this subject. The more you turn over the pages of "Who's Who" the more your interest in the stage and its followers grows. It contains in fact everything you can possibly want to know about the stage—past and present.

MANCHESTER DAILY DISPATCH says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is specially welcome, for it is the most comprehensive and authoritative reference work on theatrical matters issued in this country or elsewhere.

THE MANCHESTER EVENING NEWS says—

Ask what question you will about the English theatre, it will be surprising if you fail to find an answer in "Who's Who in the Theatre."

THE MANCHESTER GUARDIAN says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is a gigantic compilation of biographies and statistics, which maintains the high standard of diligence and accuracy set by Mr John Parker, its editor. It is impossible to think of any fact or facet of the theatre which is not dealt with in his 2,000 pages of biography and chronicle. His passion for the drama apparently turns into an unflinching delight what others would regard as terrifying drudgery. We have endeavoured in vain to think of any detail about the personnel or history of contemporary drama which Mr Parker has omitted.

"Who's Who in the Theatre," of which a new edition is now published, has always been more than an ordinary reference book. No branch of the arts is so fully documented in a volume of the kind as is the theatre in this book.

NEWCASTLE EVENING CHRONICLE says—

The most valuable biographical record of the contemporary stage.

THE SHEFFIELD INDEPENDENT says—

Mr. John Parker, a most reliable authority on matters connected with the stage, has discharged the duties of compiler and editor, and has spared no effort to make the volume an epitome of all matters relating to the theatre. We are surprised at its completeness. A marvellous book which people interested in the theatre will simply devour.

SHEFFIELD TELEGRAPH says—

A theatrical work of reference that ever since its first appearance many years ago has held an established and indispensable place on the bookshelves of all concerned with theatrical matters. "Who's Who in the Theatre" is an excellent book to refer to and a most enjoyable book to glance over, better than ever.

The work is a positive gold-mine of information about the theatre, and all that concerns it.

THE WESTERN MORNING NEWS (Plymouth) says—

The Blue-book of the Theatre. A monument to its painstaking compiler and editor, Mr John Parker. Compiler and publishers are alike to be congratulated on the contents and format of a volume which is indispensable to "the" profession.

THE YORKSHIRE OBSERVER says—

Many complimentary things have been said of former issues of "Who's Who in the Theatre," and indeed the valuable and comprehensive nature of the information with which the book deals cannot be exaggerated. Mr. John Parker is a most painstaking and sympathetic editor and compiler, and his enthusiasm for the theatre is once again manifest in the pages of this new edition of his invaluable volume. . . . We have said sufficient, perhaps, to demonstrate that the editor and those associated with him in the production of the volume have made it once again a work of reference that is indispensable, and there is no need to pay a tribute again to the well-known accuracy and hard work that have been given to its completion.

PRESS OPINIONS—contd.

THE YORKSHIRE POST says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre," edited by Mr. John Parker, is well established among standard reference books. Nowhere else can one find such full biographies of actors and actresses, with chronological lists of the plays in which they have appeared. The new edition appears more thorough and valuable than ever.

The best theatrical directory published. It supplies a want that has been increasingly felt in recent times. There is no other work of reference which can fill its place.

So far as we have been able to test it, Mr. Parker's accuracy deserves as many marks as his immense and intelligent labour. He sets a standard in biographical books of reference which is unequalled.

EDINBURGH DISPATCH says—

The biographies are models of brevity and compression, and consequently, like Jaques, "full of matter." The inclusion of celebrities of the foreign stage is unusual in such publications, and in view of the comparative inaccessibility of the information, all the more valuable in this.

THE EDINBURGH EVENING NEWS says—

The editor, Mr. John Parker, has done his work thoroughly and well, and the result is a storehouse of information which is unique among theatrical reference books.

THE GLASGOW EVENING TIMES says—

Like most works of reference which have established themselves as indispensable, "Who's Who in the Theatre," by John Parker, grows in bulk, as well as in usefulness with the years. This book is a mine of useful information, and a monument of industry and patience.

THE GLASGOW HERALD says—

Mr. John Parker, editor and compiler of "Who's Who in the Theatre," makes no vain claim when he describes the latest volume as the most comprehensive of its kind yet published. This will be found a valuable record to all interested in the theatre, and not least to Shakespearean students, who are furnished here with a unique chronology of the Shakespearean drama.

Some years ago Sir H. Beerbohm Tree described this work as "absolutely pyramidal" as a monument of industry. It is also, in everything connected with theatre and variety hall, a vast repository of business facts and of that personal information which is so attractive to all the human kind. It is a work of indispensable utility to all who are interested in any way in the stage. There is hardly any curiosity with regard to the theatre and theatre-folks, which may not be satisfied from its pages. An immense amount of painstaking work must have been necessary to compile this volume, but the result fully justifies the effort.

THE SCOTSMAN says—

To those who have had occasion to use it in former years, "Who's Who in the Theatre" has proved itself as a most reliable book of reference in matters histrionic. In the edition which is now published, its editor, Mr. John Parker, has increased its usefulness in several ways.

An indispensable manual of reference for playgoers on both sides of the Atlantic and for all classes of students of the recent history of the contemporary drama.

THE WEEKLY SCOTSMAN says—

With an up-to-date edition of this invaluable work of reference at our elbow, we can be accurate with ease. Our labour is saved by the prodigious care John Parker takes to give us the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth about the theatre.

DUBLIN EVENING HERALD says—

Invaluable to any one who wishes to find out briefly and succinctly anything about anybody in connection with the theatrical profession.

IRISH INDEPENDENT says—

A veritable mine of information on all subjects relating to the stage. The book is handsomely produced, and is altogether indispensable as a reference volume for any one connected with or interested in the stage.

PRESS OPINIONS—contd.

CAPE TIMES says—

To all those who have anything to do with the theatre there is no more invaluable reference book than Mr. John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre." Mr. Parker deserves an infinite amount of credit for this monumental work.

MELBOURNE ARGUS says—

The volume is an epitome of all matters relating to the theatre.

TORONTO DAILY STAR says—

This work is the only authentic playgoers' guide about drama people in the English language. It omits scarcely anybody of note. No other so exhaustive and reliable a work has yet been undertaken. This work rivals Grove's Dictionary of Music, which takes five large volumes.

THE GLOBE (Toronto) says—

Grateful readers and reviewers everywhere are joining in a chorus of praise for Mr. Parker's amazing industry, accuracy, and far-sighted comprehensiveness. The book is literally indispensable. It is such a delightful volume to browse in, at random, that this reviewer finds difficulty in laying it aside long enough to write about it.

TORONTO SATURDAY NIGHT says—

"Who's Who in the Theatre" is accepted as the standard, authoritative biographical record of the contemporary stage. A credit both to the compiler and the publisher. People who pride themselves on knowing who is who theatrically cannot afford to be without this book.

TORONTO EVENING TELEGRAM says—

Toronto schools have played a large part in the development of international stars. . . . Almost everything of importance connected with the theatre is dealt with in this book, free trade unionism to theatrical Wills. . . . And the list of hereditary theatrical families—80 pages of "family trees," showing how the profession intermarries—would at once tease and delight the editor of Burke's peerage and the staff of the College of Arms.

JOHANNESBURG SUNDAY TIMES says—

There is so much information in "Who's Who in the Theatre," that one scarcely knows where to turn first. It is the biographies which make "Who's Who in the Theatre," the most important work of theatrical reference in existence. No one interested in entertainment, no student of the drama and no auditor who takes his drama seriously, can afford to be ignorant in the face of this colossal monument to Mr. Parker's industry.

BOSTON SUNDAY GLOBE says—

John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre" presents in the new edition, a remarkably exhaustive and convenient handbook of information regarding actors and actresses now before the public.

LOS ANGELES TIMES says—

No other volume devoted to the contemporary theatre contains such an incalculable number of facts and dates.

NEW YORK EVENING POST says—

Mr. Parker's indispensable biographical and statistical compendium of the major figures and events in the English and American theatres is out in a new and enlarged edition. A book without which no theatre library can pretend to completeness.

NEW YORK TIMES says—

That most valuable reference book of the stage—John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theatre"—has just come out in a new edition. . . . All in all, "Who's Who" contains a mine of valuable information—statistical, biographical and historical.

THEATRE ARTS MONTHLY (New York) says—

Steady revision and enlargement have made this volume, in its twenty-first year, the most reliable and complete record of the theatre that we have. It contains, in fact, almost anything for which the student of the English or American stage could ask. It is an inevitable item for any complete theatre library.
